

Survivor: Antigonish

You and your group are stranded on a deserted tropical island, with no clue as to when or if you will be rescued. Survival is hard work. You need to hunt and gather food, find a good source of freshwater, construct a fire, build a shelter, ward off dangerous animals, and try to figure out how to contact help. You all decide that it's probably a better idea to work together.

How will you organize yourselves? Can you survive until rescuers find you? Fill out the following worksheet and find out if you have what it takes!

1. There are many tasks that need to be accomplished in order for you to survive. You need to figure out who is going to be doing what. You decide you need a leader to help smooth things along. How will you select one? Explain the process for choosing one.

2. What powers will that leader have? (Can they kick people out of the group? Can they decide who does what task?) What tasks are they responsible for?

3. You decide you need to have rules. Does the leader make the rules, or does everyone get a say?

4. Does the leader decide the punishment for breaking the rules, or does everybody get a say?

5. Does the leader decide who does what task, or does everybody get a say?

6. How would you select a new leader? When would you select a new leader?

7. Design a flag for your island group!
